DEMOCRATS SHOULD REMAIN IN LINE.

The democrats in this city have the majority beyond any question. It is not making an extravagant claim to say that the democrats are in the majority as two is to one. Now, we have a city election coming on and we hear the old familiar plea from the republicans: "You should not be influenced by your politics in municipal elections." This old slogan has been used many times in the past to induce democrats to vote for republicans whose fitness for the office sought was no better than his democratic opponent. It is always the cry of the party in the minority for the purpose of securing votes from the majority party. In this city the democrats have nominated a ticket composed of men who are known because of their honesty and fitness for carrying on the public business of the city. If they were sincere in desiring to eliminate politics from the municipal election then it was their duty to endorse the democratic candidates. But that is not the republican way; it has always been their endeavor to weaken the democratic party and no one ever heard of the republicans giving aid to any regular democrat, one who has become known for his loyalty to that party; it is the republican way to flatter weak democrats into voting for their ticket or form an alliance with democrats who are hungry for office and who know that they can never secure one from their own party.

Democracy is just as essential in municipal government as it is in county, state or national government. It means equal rights for all and special privileges for none. It was the policies of favoritism upheld by the republican party which brought about the trust control of this country, notwithstanding the long protest of the democrats; republican policies are those which tend to the centralization of power; the democrats contend that the people should be left as the supreme arbiters of local and self-government. Democrats when they are supporting their local candidates are strengthening the cause of democracy higher up in the sphere. If you maintain party supremacy in the city you will help the chances of democratic success in the county. If the democrats are victorious in the counties of Arizona, then the new state will be democratic and the United States senators will be chosen from the democratic party.

The republicans have had little to do with the government of this city in the past; whatever has been done for the improvement and advancement of the city the democrats are entitled to the credit for it. Nothing could have been done without the sanction of the democrats.

The local democratic ticket is worthy of the support of the democrats and if the democrats vote their ticket the democratic candidates are assured of victory. There is no reason for giving the republicans of this city the opportunity, after the election, to be grinning around because of the fact that they were able to fool the democrats.

The report that Judge Webster Street had been stricken with partial paralysis at Bowie station when on his way to Globe last Sunday caused expressions of deep regret throughout the territory. Judge Street is now reported to be recovering. This incident brings to mind the fact that Judge Street was one of the pioneer citizens of this county. He came to Tombstone during the booming times of that camp, which was attracting the attention of the mining world along about 1881-2. Here he became prominent as an attorney and handled some of the important litigation which attracted the attention of the courts at that time. When Tombstone began to decline because of the flooding of the great mines of the camp and the inability of the owners to get together on a pumping proposition Judge Street joined the Cochise county colony which went to Phoenix during the first boom of that city. He was for a long time a law partner of Ben Goodrich in Phoenix, the firm ranking as one of the ablest in the territory. In 1897 he was appointed to the office of chief justice of the territory and served four years. Since then he has been engaged in the practice of his profession. He is one of the prominent members of the Knights of Pythias in this territory and has done much for the upbuilding of this order. The many old friends of Judge Street in Cochise county will hope that his recovery will be complete and that he will live yet for many years to watch the prosperity of the territory in which he helped to blaze the trails for civilization and industry.

YAQUI PEACE MEANS MUCH.

The agreement of peace entered into by the commander of the Yaqui Indians in Sonora with the military and civil authorities of that state will cause no less rejoicing in Arizona than in Sonora, the scene of the long conflict of the Yaquis against what they have considered unjust treatment by the Mexican government. The Yaqui troubles in Sonora during the last two decades have done much to retard the progress of that country and prevent the development of its wonderfully rich resources. It has been just about twenty years ago since the Apache Indian troubles were ended in Arizona much on the same plan that has been adopted by the Mexican authorities in Sonora.

The Apaches were placed upon reservations by the government and the murderous leader, Geronimo, with his hostile followers, was deported to Florida and yet remain as prisoners of the government, now stationed at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

According to the peace terms reported from Hermosillo the Yaqui Indians are assured all the rights of Mexican citizens; this will enable them to appropriate homes on the public lands of Sonora and to pursue any occupation they may desire and in any section of the state south of the Ures district.

The Yaquis have the reputation among those engaged in mining in Sonora of being the very best labor to be had in that state. They are industrious and quick to learn the methods of underground work. The fact that they have been able to practically defy the government of Sonora for twenty years shows that their leaders are men of more than ordinary ability. While many of the Yaquis have always been apparently peaceful and industrious, still it is known that they were all in touch and in sympathy with the war being waged for the rights of their people.

Yaquis in the mines were continually contributing their earnings to those who were fighting the government and supplying arms and ammunition and it was this which caused the government to adopt the policy of deporting the Yaquis from all the camps in the state to Yucatan.

With the Yaqui Indians at peace with the government in Sonora that state may be expected to make greater industrial progress than ever. Many important mining enterprises have been abandoned to remain idle for years because of the danger of Yaqui raids, pillage and murder. With the Yaquis at peace all these enterprises will be resumed. Americans, who have allowed their investments to remain idle, will now resume operations and Arizona will be greatly benefited thereby.

It is to be hoped that nothing will happen to prevent the consummation of the peace terms in Sonora to the satisfaction of the Indians. A peaceful, working Yaqui Indian is a valuable asset in Sonora and the resumption of prosperity in that state which is bound to follow the settlement of the Yaqui troubles will add much to the prosperity of Arizona.

THE INDEPENDENTS.

It is given out that William Randolph Hearst has decided to name his new political party the Independent party. Whatever Mr. Hearst decides to call the aggregation of his dupes no one will hardly believe that any of them will ever be independent of the dictation of the fellow journalist. Hearst is independent of the old political parties because after spending several million dollars he was unable to control the democratic party or attract it to his direction. Having tried one of the old parties he knew that the door of the other prominent party would be closed to him should he attempt to break into it.

Now he starts his independent movement and places his trusted men in charge of it. Men, who four years ago, backed by the Hearst dollars, were the most brazen in political chicanery, going to the extent of openly debauching the voters wherever it was possible to secure delegates for Hearst. This is the kind of discredited politicians who will be found in control of the Hearst Independent party.

The action of Hearst is not different from many others who have been unable to attract the attention of their old party to the virtues of which they proclaim loudly on every available occasion. When a man becomes imbued with the idea that the government can no longer continue without his peculiar ideas of what government ought to be, then he is ready to cut loose from old party affiliations and suggest that he be elected to office through some new party. The old greenback party was composed of every old political corpse from both the republican and democratic parties who had failed to attract attention to their wild eyes of finance. The populist party was and is composed of the men who failed to run their old parties and left them on that account. Everybody understands this. The same disposition of neglected officeholders is the same in high and low stratas of the political arena.

Take the socialists of today and you will find that the leaders were at one time the most industrious of officeholders to be found in one or the other of the old parties.

Independent parties and independent tickets may always be traced to disappointments of their leaders in the old parties and to an inordinate appetite for holding office.

The coming of an excursion of the business men of Tucson to Bisbee and Douglas on Sunday will be an event which should result in much good. The coming together of the men who are handling the commercial business of Arizona will result in bringing these men into closer acquaintance and in bringing about concerted action in the matter of considering important matters which have for their object the betterment of commercial conditions in this territory. The business men's excursion to Cochise county from Tucson should be welcomed by all; as such events are in the direction of building a greater Arizona.

Practical Fashions

LADIES' COMBINATION UNDERGARMENT.

Paris Pattern No. 2289.—Fertile lawn, nainsook, or batiste may all be used for this attractive undergarment, which combines wide umbrella open drawers, attached to a fitted yoke, joined to a corset-cover, the joining being hidden by a ribbon run beading. Similar beading, finished with a narrow edging, trims the round neck and armholes of the corset cover, and the drawers portion is finished with a wide edging of English embroidery, held in place by bows of wide ribbon. The pattern is in six sizes—32 to 42 inches, bust measure. For 36 bust the garment, as in front view, requires 2 1/2 yards of material 36 inches wide, or 2 1/2 yards 42 inches wide, with five yards of edging four inches wide, 8 1/2 yards of beading, 8 1/2 yards of narrow ribbon, 3 1/2 yards of wide ribbon and 3 1/2 yards of narrow edging to trim. To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Editor," office of this paper. Write name and address plainly and be sure to give size and number of pattern.
